CHEEKTOWAGA, N.Y. -- With the help of The Hope Project and Target, Cheektowaga Police had the chance to give back to less fortunate local families Monday.

The Blue Mittens Project, which began last year, gives officers the opportunity to do some holiday shopping with the families, making their holiday season a little more bright.

Last year, the officers took five kids and their families shopping, and this year, the trip to Target included eight children and four families.

The group set out to Target Monday morning, where they did their shopping and finished at Salsarita's with a complimentary lunch for the families.
